GRANITE CITY — It's all up to Wal-Mart now. More than 13,000 letters requesting a Wal-Mart in Granite City were hand-delivered Wednesday by Mayor Von Dee Cruse to company headquarters in Bentonville, Ark.

"We've got their attention," Cruse said shortly before midnight last night, after returning from Bentonville. "They wanted to see the letters. We took them with us in a van. We were assured Mr. (Sam) Walton would see them."

Cruse was told Wal-Mart would send representatives to tour the area soon. If the city is selected for a store, development plans could be set in place for 1990, he said.

"We're not on their list for 1989, but we were assured that they will be taking a real good look at Granite City in the very near future, possibly in place for 1990," he said.

SHOWING THEIR SUPPORT: Granite City officials surround a table filled with more than 13,000 letters, and other officials and residents hold a sign supporting the building a Wal-Mart store here. The letters, signed by city residents, were displayed during the City Council meeting Tuesday before being taken to Wal-Mart headquarters in Arkansas on Wednesday.

Arnett guilty of murdering man on road

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — Gene Arnett is guilty of first-degree murder, the jury decided Tuesday in Madison County Circuit Court.

The jury reached the decision without taking a formal ballot.

Jury Foreman Howard Bolton, Granite City, said jury members had no doubt Arnett shot Todd Scrum on Oct. 24, but said the idea of a sniper cruising the highway was not part of the jury's decision.

The jury deliberated a little more than two hours, including a lunch break, before reaching the verdict at 1:32 p.m. At the request of John Rekowski, Arnett's attorney, the jury was polled.

In closing argument, Assistant State's Attorney Robert Trone said Arnett's story of a hit and run auto collision didn't hold up.

"What is a person going to tell his girlfriend and best friends? He's got to tell them something. He can't say he was just there having fun shooting people," Trone told the jury. "But that's exactly what he was doing."

Trone told the jury that even if it believed Arnett's story of the shooting, guilty would be the only proper verdict.

"He knew (shooting a shotgun at Todd Scrum) would kill or cause great bodily harm or should have known he was going to kill," Trone said. "That is first-degree murder."

Bolton said the jury had doubts that the Rongey and Houser shootings were connected and therefore did not consider them when reaching the verdict.

When the defense rested Tuesday morning, Circuit Judge Philip Rarick dismissed the jury for a recess. Rekowski, in its absence, asked Rarick for a directed acquittal verdict in the case because, Rekowski said, the state had failed to prove any charge. The request was denied.

Rekowski did not present a closing argument. After the verdict, he said that earlier in the day Rarick had ruled against the defense that the jury be instructed to consider whether this was a reckless act.

"There will be an appeal," Rekowski said. "He said the jury should have been given more options than guilty or not guilty. He said reckless homicide guilt should have been an alternative."

"This was a reckless act," he said. "But the judge said there was no evidence of recklessness." Asked if he thought the idea of a reckless killing would have had an effect on the jury's verdict, Bolton said it would have been discussed, but not intensely.

"Several of us own shotguns. When you point a weapon, a shotgun and the barrel is a hole 1-inch in diameter, that is not a whole lot of involuntary anything," Bolton said.

Defense testimony Tuesday centered on the credibility of Houser's identification of Arnett's car. Arnett will be sentenced on the next available date, Rarick said.

Dentist won't treat ARC victim's father

GRANITE CITY — Al Robertson's wisdom tooth is gone, but his frustration lingers.

A Granite City dentist refused to treat him Monday. Robertson's 7-year-old son, Jason, has AIDS-related complex.

"I'd make anybody angry," Robertson said Wednesday. "I set and think about a thing before I get angry, but the more I thought about it the more I got angry."

The dentist, William Chen, declined to comment Wednesday because, his secretary said, he had received "threats." The secretary would not explain further about the alleged threats. Chen's attorney, Andy Miosky, said Chen wasn't sure his facilities met American Dental Association guidelines for treating a person with AIDS.

"He wouldn't come anywhere near me to examine me," Robertson said. "He walked up to the end of my feet and stood there and asked how I was feeling."

"I told me to open my mouth and lean my head back. He said it looked like the wisdom tooth needed to be pulled. He said he would give me pain pills and antibiotics, but he could not pull it."

Based on the way he said he was treated by Chen's assistants, Robertson said he wasn't surprised when the dentist refused to pull the tooth.

"I knew what was going on," he said. "They asked all the normal questions, and that, and then they asked if anyone in my family had AIDS. I think they saw Jason sitting in the waiting room."

An assistant told him he would not be treated until he took a blood test for AIDS, he said.

On Tuesday, another Granite City dentist agreed to treat Robertson after all other patients had left.

When opposites meet: The Arnett-Scrum case

By Jack C. Ventimiglia
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Gene Arnett carried a shotgun and a past. Todd Scrum faced a bright boy's future.

At 29, Gene had a string of juvenile offenses followed by nine years at Menard Prison for committing two armed robberies. He bore the signs of nonconformity — long hair, tattoos. He had problems.

He stole his father's shotgun. At 21, Todd Scrum had a loving family, close friends, lettered in cross country at Granite City High School, and was a cheerleader earning good grades as a marketing major at Quincy College.

Todd was home on fall break. Arnett was free on parole.

The paths of the two Granite City men crossed about 1 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 25, on Interstate 270, near Illinois 111.

How it really happened is anyone's guess. Gene's attorney this week tried to support the idea that Todd sided-swiped Gene's car and made an obscene gesture.

"(Todd) was not that kind of kid," his father, Vince Scrum, said Wednesday.

The result of the encounter is clear: Gene raised the stolen shotgun, fired and the blast struck Todd in the head. Todd's car left the westbound lane of I-270, struck a guardrail about one mile east of 111, traveled about 100 feet farther and stopped. Todd was pronounced dead within two hours.

Police first reported the incident as a one-car traffic accident. Later, when the body was more closely inspected, investigators found shotgun pellets and announced the first in what became a string of highway sniping incidents in the St. Louis area that eventually gained international attention.

While police began the task of trying to identify Todd's killer, Gene was helping to build a case against himself by telling friends what he'd done. They didn't believe him, not until they heard the news reports.

Todd's father, mother, sister and two brothers listened Friday as Gene's former girlfriend, Vicki Cleveland, 25, Alton, testified before a Madison County Circuit Court jury that she was among those Gene wanted to know about the shooting. He called her to make sure she saw the news report about Todd's death.

Gene was boasting about murdering an unarmed college kid. That testimony was hardest on the Scrum family as they listened from the back of the courtroom.

"I guess the fact that (Gene) was bragging that he probably hurt us more than anything, that would be something to brag about," Vince said.

Evidence against Gene was solid. The stolen shotgun, the people he'd boasted to about killing Todd, the fact that Gene tried to disguise himself as a piece of furniture prior to being shot, Arnett said. (See ARNETT, Page 7A)

Also, the panel endorsed a request for $2.1 million to finance a 1,500-foot extension of a runway at St. Louis-Downtown Parks Airport in Cahokia.

Both requests are subject to review by the council's board of directors, which is scheduled to meet Wednesday.

Improvements to the bridge approach will include widening of piers, retaining walls and applying new surfaces. The project also will include the installation of highway tower lights.

Of the total cost, $18.9 million would be requested from the U.S. Department of Transportation. The Illinois Department of Transportation, which is proposing the work, would provide $5.2 million, according to the project document.

Brooks Brestal, a planner with the state highway agency, said the project's timetable calls for bids to be let for initial work in December. The project is expected to be completed by the end of 1991, he said.

Traffic would continue to move through the area while the work was being done, Brestal said.

The work proposed at the airport would extend a runway to 7,000 feet from its length of 5,500 feet. The runway extension would allow larger aircraft to land, the project report said.

Currently, there are 163 aircraft based at the airport.

Of the $2.1 million being requested, $1.9 million would come from the Federal Aviation Administration, $100,000 from IDOT and $105,657 from the Bi-State Development Agency, which is making the request.

In prepared remarks, Dixon linked the current Pentagon scandal with organized resistance to Godwin's new role and with what he called a "buddy system" between former and current Pentagon officials.

Dixon said the buddy system, operating within a "gray area" of the law, thrives on the exchange of information, some of it classified, about pending contracts worth millions of dollars.

"In that gray area, profoundly damaging things are happening to our national security," Dixon said.

Dixon said each military service continues to run its own procurement program. A Pentagon spokeswoman said the Department of Defense maintains that the acquisition undersecretary has enough power.

"The department feels there's sufficient authority for that position," Pentagon spokeswoman Jan Bodanyi said. She added that Pentagon's procurement budget for fiscal 1989 is projected at $80 billion.

In prepared remarks, Dixon linked the current Pentagon scandal with organized resistance to Godwin's new role and with what he called a "buddy system" between former and current Pentagon officials.

Cool relief in Madison

MADISON — People who need relief from the heat, which has topped the 100 degrees, may stop by one of the city's recreation centers between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. and take advantage of the air conditioning.

Mayor John Bellcove and Dan Sipes, emergency service and disaster director, announced Monday that the centers will be available daily until the heat wave ends.

"As long as this heat stays the way it is, the centers will be available for anyone who doesn't have air conditioning who wants to go to them," Sipes said.

"If anyone knows of someone who may be an elderly person who wouldn't go to this place on his own, contact City Hall and at least make us aware of who he is. Or if there is some type of emergency, call the Police Department and make it aware that someone is in danger," Sipes said.

The centers are at Seventh Street and Lee Avenue, and at 901 W. Madison Ave.

Spokesmen for the Salvation Army and St. Elizabeth's Medical Center in Granite City said no heat relief centers have been set up there, but persons needing help should contact either organization.

Dixon said former Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger knuckled under to the chief of the military services, particularly then-Navy Secretary John Lehman, when they resisted giving Godwin control over procurement.

Dixon said giving more clout to Acquisition Undersecretary Robert B. Costello, for instance, would reduce interservice rivalry, cut spending and increase accountability.

"The point is that there is still a problem in the system and we need to pass stronger legislation to see to it that there is a procurement czar, a person completely in charge in the Department of Defense with respect to acquisition and procurement," Dixon said.

Dixon, who serves on the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the Pentagon acquisition post never got established the way Congress intended, causing its undersecretary, Richard Godwin, to quit after a year.

Dixon said that giving Godwin control over procurement would be a "buddy system" between former and current Pentagon officials.

Pontoon Beach levy approved: $253,340

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTON BEACH — A tax levy of $253,340 for fiscal 1988-1989 won approval from the Village Board at its meeting on June 17.

Amounts included $105,670 for general corporate purposes; $105,670 for police protection; $24,000 for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund; and $18,000 for Social Security.

Mayor Glen Wilson said the maximum amount that can be levied in corporate (village) taxes currently is 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation and a 7.5 cent rate per $100 valuation for police protection.

A Truth in Taxation Act notice was not published last year and the village could not levy any corporate (village) tax.

Assessed valuation in the village increased in 1987-88 to $12,912,627, compared to $8,883,000 in 1985-86.

The 1988-89 budget adopted May 26 amounted to $773,990. The previous budget was $657,310.

Estimated revenues for the 1988-89 fiscal year are $608,320, including all financial sources, plus a balance of $60,000 on hand.

The tax rate for all communities in the county is determined by Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles through applying the levy to the valuation.

Village Board Attorney Keith Jensen estimated that the owner of a home assessed at $10,000 (worth $30,000) will be required to pay less than $60 in taxes to the village for operations in fiscal 1989.

2 share Frohardt citizenship award

The Raymond T. Jones Citizenship Award was presented to two sixth grade students at Frohardt School. The recipients were Cassandra Krinski and Matthew Lucash.

Since its inception in 1977, this is just the third time that two candidates tied for the leadership award.

The highly prized honor was announced by Dr. Gregory Jones of Granite City, son of the late Raymond T. Jones, at the school's awards assembly.

Raymond T. Jones, for whom the award is named, was a teacher and administrator at Frohardt School and later personnel director of the Granite City School District.

Archaeologists to be at Mounds

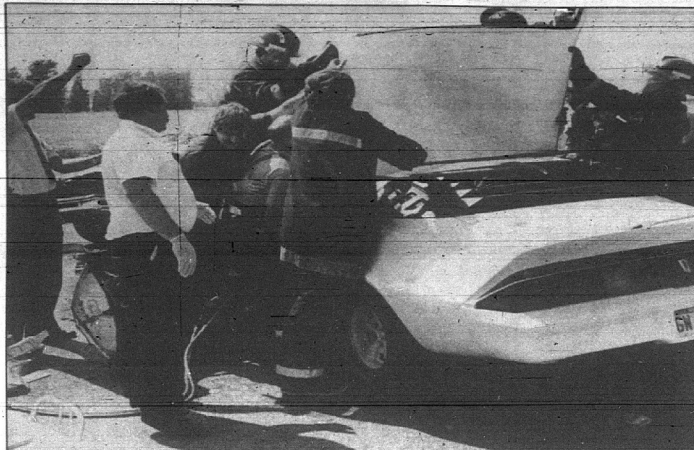

At 1:30 p.m. Sunday, archaeologists specializing in the Mississippian period, will gather at the Cahokia Mounds Theater to discuss trade practices of the Indians.

The Mississippian period, 800-1400 A.D., marked the time when the pre-historic Indian city at Cahokia Mounds thrived. Long-distance trade was evident at Cahokia in archaeological excavations, especially at Mound 72.

Rolls of copper from Lake Superior, mica from North Carolina and whelk shells from the Gulf Coast were discovered.

The public is invited to the discussion. For more information, call the Cahokia Mounds Museum at 244-5958.

Cahokia Mounds State Historic Site is on Collinsville Road off Interstates 255, 55/70 or Illinois 111.

FATAL CRASH: Emergency workers peel back the roof of a car involved in a head-on collision Tuesday on Illinois 111 in Pontoon Beach. Police said John Gline Jr., 36, East St. Louis, was killed in the wreck, and his 8-year-old child was critically injured. Two other children in the car were treated for minor injuries. The driver of the other car, Gary Wilson, 27, Pontoon Beach, is in serious but stable condition at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. A witness said the Camaro that Wilson was driving north veered into the southbound lane and collided with the car being driven by Gline.

Float volunteers commended

By Valerie Evenden

PONTON BEACH — Mayor Glen Wilson congratulated the group of volunteers who helped to create the village's 25th anniversary float.

The float won the first-place trophy in the Family Days division in the May 30 Shriners parade.

"I want to commend the committee. They really worked hard and they did a fine job," Wilson said at a Village Board meeting June 17.

Mary Rowden, village deputy clerk, spearheaded the float decorating project, the first float to be entered by the village in an area parade.

"Mary worked very hard on the project and got it all together," said Andrea Andrews, a village police dispatcher and volunteer decorator, who also walked alongside the float costumed as "McCruff," the take-a-bite-out-of-crime dog.

The float featured a birthday cake, marking the village's 25th anniversary, and decorated picnic tables.

Riding in style were elected officials and members of the Pontoon Beach Lions and Lionses clubs.

Mary Shafer, whose husband, Fred, owns Bear Foot, a monster truck, was attired in a Bear Foot costume.

Other volunteers who helped to decorate the entry included Nancy Chet and Lynn Ballow, Janet, Fred and Steven Barringer, James Andrews, Mike Crouch, Portia Denham, Tara Thomas, Bev Partney, Gary and Teri Rowden and Mary and Jerry Warren.

Classes begin July 11 and run through Aug. 25.

Swimettes is a way to obtain aerobic exercise while in the water and is also being offered on Mondays and Thursdays. This class will meet from 8:15 to 9:15 p.m. at the Wilson Park pool.

The class size is limited to the first 35 registrations and one need not know how to swim to participate.

The cost of the program is $7.50 for Park District residents and $17.50 for non-residents. Classes also begin July 11 and run through Aug. 25.

Uncertainty at Wal-Mart

Depending on which Wal-Mart

secretary you talk to, Granite City's quest for a discount store of its own is either impressive, uncertain, or overwhelming.

The letter-writing campaign to attract a Wal-Mart to the downtown area is in full swing. Hundreds of letters have already been mailed to Wal-Mart headquarters in Bentonville, Ark., and Mayor Von Dee Cruise plans to hand-deliver thousands more.

Meanwhile, in Bentonville, the words "Granite City" are drawing mixed reactions.

The executive in charge of real estate and development couldn't be reached Friday. Nor could the regional development director for Illinois. His secretary referred all comments to public relations director Stacy Duncan.

Duncan couldn't be reached, either. But her assistant, who asked not to be identified, did have a statement.

"We have no interest in the Granite City area," she said.

The secretary for the regional development director for Illinois had a different response.

"No, they're not wasting their time," said the secretary, Kathy

Keith. "We don't have any immediate plans for the Granite City area, but that could change."

FEET FIRST

IN YOUR CHILD'S SHOES

By Dr. Claude Hiles

For the small child who is stumbling his way to learning to walk, a switch to leather shoes from sneakers may help. Excessive stumbling, however, may be due to a poor fit. For the majority of children with wide feet, this means a compensatory move to larger sneakers. The resultant poorer fit may well induce a child to stumble. By contrast, leather shoes provide a more precise fit and greater stability. A limited study of children aged eleven to sixteen months showed sneaker-clad children, on average, to be four times as likely to stumble as children in leather shoes.

Serious foot conditions are rare in young children. You do need to be concerned, however, if excessive pediatric disorders cause your child to trip or fall. Contact a podiatrist for a professional diagnosis. My office is located at 1930 State St. and provides quality foot care and in-house surgery. Pediatric disorders, including foot and bone deformities are treated. Hours by appointment. Tel. 877-6025. BC/BS, John Hancock and Medicare accepted.

Bands jam for Jason

GRANITE CITY — Local musicians will band together Sunday for a day of rock and roll music and dancing to benefit a 7-year-old boy with AIDS-related complex.

"There'll be all kinds of rock — everything from Christian rock to metal, everything," said Todd Jones, 22, one of the organizers of the event.

Jones said he and his girlfriend, Christine Nash, 22, observed the plight of Granite City Jason Robertson, a hemophiliac with AIDS, in the media.

"We didn't like the way he was being treated," Jones said. "He isn't guilty of anything. The only thing he's guilty of is being sick. He's going to die and it isn't fair."

Jason contracted ARC through a tainted blood-additive. He received media attention earlier this year when his mother, Tammy Robertson, sued District 9 to have him placed in a regular elementary school classroom.

"We have nothing to do with that issue," Jones said. "We try to stay out of that. We just decided in our own way to do something for this little boy."

Seven bands, all with members from the Granite City area, will be performing Sunday, beginning at 2 p.m., at the Mexican Honorary Commission, 1801 Spruce St. Tickets are $7, and are available at the door. All money raised will go to a special trust fund set up for Jason at Central Bank. There will be free beer and soft drinks.

Jones and Nash have written to area businesses asking for financial support.

"We are no more than a concerned group of private individuals attempting to offset the financial burden now and in the future to give the Robertson family new hope," they say in the letter.

At 76, with 65 years as a Scout, Ruby Jackson's motto is—

'I was, I am, I will be a Girl Scout'

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A sign in the window of one of the apartments at the Town and Country complex across from Worthen Park announces the allegiance of the apartment's occupant in positive, no-nonsense language. "I was, I am, I will be a Girl Scout," it tells the passing world.

The apartment's occupant is Ruby Jackson, 76, who is in her 66th year with the Girl Scouts. She may well be the world's oldest active Girl Scout. Ruby had donned her Scout uniform, decorated with several dozen pins, to talk to a reporter. Later she modeled a 1919 khaki Scout uniform.

The old Scout was honored recently for her many contributions to Scouting. At an awards ceremony of the River Bluffs Council of the Girl Scouts in April, she was presented with her 65-year pin.

"I started as a Campfire Girl," Ruby said. "I'm one-quarter Indian, so I guess that's why I joined Campfire."

"I joined one of the first troops in the Quad City area when I was 12 years old," she said. "There were girls from Granite, Madison, Venice and Mitchell. I've been in Scouts ever since."

Years later, while living with her husband on a farm near Dorsey, Ill., she started a number of Girl Scout troops in the areas of Bethalto, Dorsey and Bunker Hill. In 1964, she and the leaders of those troops took 28 Girl Scouts on a 17-day camping trip to Washington, D.C., New York, New Jersey and north to Canada.

Girl Scout Council professionals tried to dissuade them from making the trip, but Ruby was determined they would go.

"They weren't sure we were capable," she said, "but I knew we were. The girls never wanted for things to do."

Ruby's primary Scouting activity today consists of going around to Scout troops and showing a rare home movie from 1927. It was shot at a Scout camp she attended in Infront, Mo.

Ruby showed the grainy silent film to this reporter and provided a running commentary. Ruby loves to talk.

As the girls raced jerkily about on the speeded-up film, she seemed to grow visibly younger. Some girls skittered through a rapid game of tennis.

"We all wore bloomers and middies in those days," she said.

The girls zipped around making their beds. "I still make my bed hospital style," Ruby said.

Her now-white hair was quite dark 60 years ago. "There I am! In the middle with the turtle! They wouldn't let me bring it back. That made me mad!"

"Ruby is pretty feisty about a lot of things," cantankerous not be an unfair description — and she's not shy about expressing her opinions. But a minute later as the girls danced an enthusiastic Indian dance around a campfire, Ruby sighed wistfully. "We had more fun than you could shake a stick at," she said.

Ruby started five troops herself and advised a total of 28. She last headed a troop 20 years ago. "I enjoy showing the film to the girls (today)," she said. "And showing the old books. I think the old way was best."

At the awards ceremony in April, the River Bluffs Council gave Ruby a videocassette recorder to enable her to watch her old silent self whenever she chooses.

For years Ruby ran a book-keeping service and was quite an active member of Business and Professional Women, so she did a lot of traveling. In her suitcase, she always carried her Scout uniform, never knowing when she might need it. "Always prepared" is Scouting motto, after all. In London for a BPW convention years ago, she attended "Thinking Day," an annual event at Westminster Cathedral to honor the British founders of the Scouting movement, Lord and Lady Baden Powell.

Ruby Jackson talks about her 66 years of Scouting

She wore her uniform and was standing in the rear of the cathedral watching the proceedings when she was noticed and escorted down front to sit with other visiting Scout dignitaries. Afterwards, they were escorted out to a trumpet fanfare. The memory of the experience caused her eyes to mist over briefly.

"I love the Girl Scouts. It's in my heart," she said.

Ruby Jackson loves Scouting so much that she has made arrangements to be buried in her Scout uniform, but not soon. She plans to collect her 70-year Scouting pin, too.

She showed the reporter out and returned to her apartment crowded with Scouting memorabilia. But she's not the sort to sit around lost in the past. Painters were coming to paint the apartment, after which she had to get ready for a trip to an Oklahoma bingo parlor.

"I like cards and bingo," she said. "I like to stay active."

Lost In This Space

By Andy Siering

Yups dig dirt

You're driving along on a pleasant afternoon when you hear—an ominous thumping behind you. You open the trunk. GAAHHH!

You get ready to watch a little tube. Setting down your cold frosty, you reach to move a couch cushion. EEEKKK, there's another one!

You get a strange package in the mail with no return address. It's quite heavy. You rip it open. AIEEE!

The horror is back! Yes, it's zucchini season again. All across America, zillions of the green gourds are lurking beneath their leafy cover, growing, swelling, gathering strength for their annual assault. This time around may be the worst yet: with the drought and the threat of massive crop failure, folks may have figured they needed to plant a few extra.

Don't do it!!! On your restraint may hang the fate of life as we know it! Zucchini is the botanical equivalent of communism: It won't rest until it has taken over the world. It can't look at zucchini without thinking of "Invasion of the Body Snatchers."

Speaking of zombieified imitations of life, they tell me yuppies are getting into gardening lately. According to Time magazine, nursery owners say business has doubled in the last few years and yups spent half of the record $17.5 billion spent last year on horticulture. At fashionable dinner parties nowadays, chic young professionals swap recipes for composts instead of condiments, mulches instead of micro-waves.

As far as I'm concerned, the yuppies deserve to be buried beneath a big pile of zucchini, but of course that won't happen since the yups suffer from terminal trendsiness. They wouldn't dream of cultivating anything so common as zucchini. When yups discovered pets, they quickly graduated from purebred dogs and cats to monkeys, ferrets and llamas. Now that they're into gardening, they're going in for exotica such as Peruvian purple potatoes and something called celituce, a sort of cross between celery and lettuce.

Time reports the new generation of gardeners is now growing edible flowers, for crêpe's sake. They sprinkle salads with nasturtiums, lavender petals and rose petals or make cold soup of violets and scented geraniums.

Doesn't that remind you of an old "Saturday Night Live" skit? You want to know how fashionable gardening has become? Time quoted a famous fashion designer about gardening.

Oscar de la Renta, an avid gardener, was quoted saying that sometimes gardening is an act of faith in the future. Certain plants take years to flower. The gardener may not still be around when they bloom.

"Sometimes what you do is for others," de la Renta said. "We sure it is. Oscar old buddy, old pal. Gardening is for the birds, and for the squirrels. And for the sticky-fingered neighborhood kids who swipe your prize peaches and tomatoes."

Gardening isn't practical. Never mind the time you spend pruning and mulching and fertilizing, there's also the expense. Playwright Arthur Miller once half-jokingly estimated that a single tomato from his garden might have cost him as much as $6,000.

But most of all, there is the matter of time. When a gardener isn't actually working in his garden, he's planning it or worrying about it. Time quoted philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson:

"A garden is like those pernicious maneries which catch a man's coat-skin or his hand, and draw in his arm, his leg, and his whole body to irresistible destruction."

Mind you, yuppies don't want to wait for trees and shrubs to grow. They buy them, already grown, from nurseries.

Yups are spending millions on gardening accessories, too. Things like goatskin gloves and imported English gardening tools of second-growth ash. You'll never catch them in a pair of Big Smith overalls!

But like all the yuppie trends, this too shall pass. The yups, inevitably, will tire of their gar dens and let them go to seed.

What will their next passion be? I suggest a low-maintenance sort of pet, perfectly suited to their demanding lifestyles. Something that doesn't require a lot of room and doesn't leave messy little piles and hairballs around.

Alligators. Only occasionally do they bite the hand that feeds them. Heh-heh.

1888-1988: Woman marks birthday 100

About 175 family and friends gathered for the afternoon.

Smith is the former Pearl May. She was born May 23, 1888, near Dresden, Tenn., to the late George and Velpina May. She was one of 11 children.

Smith, who friends call "Miss Pearl," moved with her family to Rector, Ark., when she was a young girl. She married the late John Henry Smith on Oct. 21, 1906, and lived in Rector until 1937 when she and her family moved to Dexter, Mo.

Smith's husband died in 1952, but she continued to live alone in Dexter until six years ago when she moved to Granite City to live with her daughter, Eva Barrow.

"Even at 94, it wasn't an easy job to convince Mom she should give up housekeeping," said a family member.

Smith has nine living children.

All were present for the event. They are Estella Norman, Gladys Gowan, Cleotis Barsley, Samuel Smith, Monetta Parks, Eva Barrow, Dwight Smith, LaWanda Allie and Marvin Smith.

Smith also has an 87-year-old stepson, Herbert Smith, who was also present. A stepdaughter, Myrtle Bucy, was unable to attend.

Family members tease Park that her middle name should have been "go."

"Eva, the daughter, whom she makes her home with, drives a van but that doesn't stop her from going," said her pastor, Rev. Luther Abbott, who lives across the street. Abbott added, "I wish all my members was as faithful as Miss Pearl."

Pearl has 30 grandchildren, 78 great-grandchildren and 44 great-great-grandchildren.

Ivy Sullivan, Peggy Hass, Yvonne Coggins and Ann Abbott and Vera Lynn assisted in serving a meal.

Dental school students can fill holes in church, too

By Tommye Walter
University News Service

"We thought it was an absolutely terrible thing that happened to that church," Dr. Ordie H. King Jr., a member of the faculty at the Southern Illinois University School of Dental Medicine, said.

"We decided to take it on as a public service project."

The terrible thing he was referring to was the vandalizing and burning of the New Bethel Rocky Fork A.M.E. Church, outside Godfrey near the River-Aire subdivision, last April.

The faculty and staff of the SIU/SDM have donated $1,580 toward rebuilding the church and at least 25 students from the dental school have offered to work on the project this summer as carpenters, painters and roofers.

"We have a lot of students who have had construction work experience," King said. "There are some very good craftsmen in that group."

A lot of people in the Alton-Wood River area are providing support to the rebuilding of the little church.

The Rev. Steve Jackson, pastor of the church, said the site has been cleaned and work will begin soon.

Jackson said Sun Construction Co., Edwardsville, is donating labor for framing. Building materials have been provided by Central Lumber, Alton. J. F. Electric, Edwardsville, donated electrical fixtures, and John Malloy an Gordon Admire will provide the wiring.

Kingdom Builders, Greenville, will supply pews.

"We are going to have an old-fashioned, church-raising June 25-26," Jackson said.

"The support restored our feeling in mankind," he said. "The outpouring of community effort just lifted us back up. It's just amazing."

Recalling that dismal day in April when the church members first learned of the burning of their church, Jackson said, "It was like losing a member of the family."

The congregation went through a period of discouragement.

"We had a little low in there. Now it's go, go, go. You have to realize it's a miracle for the church to be rebuilt so soon," he said.

The $1,580 donated by SIU faculty and staff will likely be used to buy necessities for services, such as communion sets, a Christian flag and pulpit furniture, Jackson said.

and to taxpayers of America on an ongoing daily basis," Dixon said.

Dixon said he hopes the Armed Services Committee will hold hearings on his legislation, but he said an already clogged Senate calendar and the two national political conventions could postpone consideration until next year.

Dixon's comments came a week after the Justice Department disclosed a two-year probe of possibly criminal activity between Pentagon procurement officers and consultants for defense contractors.

One aspect of the investigation, which so far has led to 275 grand jury subpoenas, reportedly includes the payment of bribes to Pentagon officials by private consultants in exchange for information about pending contracts.

The consultants reportedly passed the information along to a group of defense contractors who had an inside track to win large Pentagon contracts.

Cruse was accompanied by Alan Orthals, economic development coordinator; Mel Wilmsmeyer, Magna Bank board chairman; and Bob Lombardi, Chamber of Commerce vice president. The group met with West Doss, a regional development director for Wal-Mart.

"He was really glad to see all the letters. We explained about the campaign and took along some of the headlines from the paper. He was glad to see the interest that was shown," Cruse said.

Bus route could be changed again

The westbound McKinley bus route along Madison Avenue could be changed back to State Street (between 27th and 18th streets) if there is sufficient public desire for the change, Jerry Kane, a Madison County transit official, said.

A petition given to a Granite City alderman prompted Bi-State Transit to seek Madison County Board approval for the change, which went into effect June 6. It also was cleared with Mayor Von Dee Cruse, an MCTD board member. No legal notice or public hearing was utilized.

After the rerouting was ordered, with bus riders notified through flyers on the buses, a petition opposing the change was received. It has not been acted upon.

being arrested — with that as evidence the jury reached its verdict after two hours of deliberation, including lunch — Guilty.

At most, Gene will get 40 years for taking a lifetime from Todd. That's not enough, not nearly enough to provide satisfaction for Gene Arnett, Todd's father said.

"When you lose a son, or you lose a child, 40 is never enough," Vince said. "I would hope he would get the maximum."

The trial is over, but Vince said his family will never put behind them what happened to Todd, to them.

Vince put it this way — Before and after each day of the five-day trial, the family drove on I-270 past the spot Todd was murdered and they continued on past Sunset Hill Cemetery where Todd is buried. They cannot forget.

"You never put it behind you. This is something we'll live with the rest of our lives," Vince said. "Every time we're on 270, we'll remember."

More than 100 volunteers went door-to-door to collect the letters. In addition to those delivered in person by Cruse, about 2,000 were sent to Wal-Mart headquarters individually.

Cruse said he felt the trip to Wal-Mart was worthwhile.

"I very much enjoyed it," he said. "I feel like I did when I came back from Chicago after talking with (American Steel President) Norman Burke about reopening American Steel. I still have a strong feeling that American Steel will reopen, and I have a strong feeling Wal-Mart will locate in Granite City."

Trivia

All three, Granite City, St. Paul, Minn., and Lake Michigan, lie wholly within the original boundaries of Madison County, Ill., as it was established Sept. 14, 1812. From the present southern boundary, that county stretched from the Wabash River to the Mississippi River and continued north to the Canadian border.

Drought, water supplies studied

A state drought task force is exploring options to assist drought-stricken farmers and small-town residents.

"The task force is looking at the state's resources to determine what assistance might be offered if the drought continues," said Gov. James Thompson. "The critical stage for Illinois — especially for crops — will be in the next 30 days and we want to make sure we are prepared if the dry weather continues."

The task force is made up of seven state agencies. It is to evaluate the severity of the drought and make recommendations on what the state can do to assist those affected.

The task force also is evaluating water supplies in smaller communities. Its first meeting was June 10.

Agencies on the task force are Illinois Department of Agriculture, Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, Department of Energy and Natural Resources (State Water Survey), Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, Illinois Department of Transportation (Division of Water Resources), Department of Conservation, Department of Commerce and Community Affairs and the governor's office.

Thompson also welcomed the appointment by President Ronald Reagan of a national task force to deal with the widespread drought.

"The formation of that task force helps to focus more attention on the dry conditions which are posing problems not only in Illinois but throughout the Midwest," Thompson said.

The governor also announced the establishment of an Illinois hay "hot line." The hot line will be used to help livestock producers within Illinois borders locate hay for their animals.

"We have received many inquiries suggesting farmers in the Southeast might return the favor of a few years ago by sending hay to Illinois farmers," he said. "The situation is still that severe yet. There is still plenty of hay in Illinois — the problem is that it may not be located where it is needed."

The hot line is 1-800-641-9561. It is in service Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The number is active only within Illinois.

Governors from several midwestern states met in Chicago June 23 to discuss the impact of the drought and what federal and state programs may be available to meet the needs of those affected by the drought.

In addition, the dry conditions in Illinois generally have not affected the water supply for most of the state, but Illinois State Water Survey scientists say caution is needed if the current weather situation and high water demand continue.

"Because of this spring's rainfall deficits," said Water Survey Chief Richard G. Semonin, "people should seriously begin thinking about conserving water. Illinois residents have, for the most part, been accustomed to a plentiful supply of water. Communities can usually avoid harsh water use limitation measures by developing conservation plans early."

Water Survey groundwater scientists say that if the present situation of little or no rain continues and the demand for water continues to increase, groundwater supply problems may occur in some areas of the state.

The groundwater supplies in most areas of the state are adequate, but as the high water demand continues, pumpage and storage problems could arise.

Wells that are less than 50 to 70 feet deep and on their own location, are the wells that are most susceptible to groundwater shortages as a result of below-normal spring and summer rainfall.

Also, scientists say surface water is not at a critical stage. They advise, however, that municipalities and water supply managers that rely on lakes and reservoirs for water should be thinking of alternative sources and should have backup plans in place the situation worsens.

To conserve existing water supplies, the following water-saving tips are recommended:

• Do not water lawns or wash cars when water is in short supply.

• Take shorter showers. Turn off water when lathering or shampooing, and then turn the water on to rinse.

• When filling the tub, don't let the water run down the drain until it gets hot. Instead, close the drain before turning on the faucet. The water will soon be hot.

• Limit toilet flushing. Do not flush facial tissues, paper, and similar solid and liquid wastes.

• Turn off the water while brushing your teeth or shaving. Turn faucet on and off only as needed.

• Fix all leaks at faucets and toilets.

Two charged with auto burglaries

GRANITE CITY — Two men who allegedly told police they were counting their change for a soda machine have been charged with motor vehicle burglary.

The two were reportedly arrested when found stapping in the Novotny Chevrolet lot, 2145 Madison Ave., at 3:48 a.m. June 18.

Tommy F. Campbell, 19, 2139 Monroe St., was charged in connection with the burglary of an automobile owned by Adrienne Duncan, 2403 Grand Ave.

Charles Edward Mann, 17, 1922 Benton St., was charged in connection with the burglary of a van owned by Felipe C. Alanis, 2310 Grand Ave.

Police stopped the pair after allegedly watching them slide a citizen band radio off the hood of a Granite City Steel pickup truck in the Novotny lot.

The CB radio was later identified as having been taken from Alanis' vehicle.

A search of Campbell allegedly turned up a black-handled switchblade knife, a pocket radio, owned by Duncan; and a camera. A search of Mann allegedly yielded three cassette tapes.

After being taken to the police station, Mann allegedly told police approximately 20 vehicles along Grand Avenue had been targeted, and later went with police to point them out.

Bond for each man was set at $20,000.

Car belonging to murdered woman's guest found

A car belonging to a man believed to be the house guest of murder victim Adella G. Vallerius at the time she was killed was recovered by police June 9.

Madison County Chief of Detectives Dennis Fischer declined to say where deputies found the 1979 Chevrolet station wagon owned by Carroll E. "Charlie" Pieper of the Chicago area.

Police have been searching for Pieper and his car since the slaying. The victim, 68, of Holiday Shores, was found Christmas Eve.

Fischer said the station wagon was found parked with no one inside. Police still don't know if Pieper was also a victim or if he could be a suspect.

Pieper was described by relatives as a "pen pal" who had been staying at the woman's home in December.

During the initial investigation, Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchich said Pieper told a relative he planned to move his belongings to the Vallerius home.

Blood tests showed that some of the blood found in the home was that of Vallerius and another person, but not necessarily that of Pieper.

Her death was attributed to numerous blows with a blunt instrument. Robbery was not believed to be a motive because large amounts of money and valuable objects were left undisturbed in the home, police said.

The instrument used in the slaying was recovered, but police have declined to identify it.

Fischer said the location where the station wagon was found will not be made known until detectives are finished processing and securing any items of evidence from the vehicle.

The vehicle is being examined at the sheriff's department.

14 states jointly fighting cigarette smuggling

SPRINGFIELD — On the south bank of the Ohio River, in tobacco-producing Kentucky, the state tax on a package of cigarettes is 3 cents. Cross the nearest bridge into Illinois and the tax jumps to 20 cents.

Drive north for another 400 miles, cross into Wisconsin and the state tax leaps up to 30 cents.

Smugglers find this attractive. The potential for illegal gains is limited only by the spectre of backbreaking fines and prison terms.

To fight this problem, Illinois has joined with 13 other states to open a toll-free telephone hotline to receive tips from the public on interstate cigarette trafficking.

To report any suspicious activity, persons may call 1-800-292-2824 (1-800-29-CATCH). All calls are kept confidential. The information will be taken by a Michigan treasury official and immediately turned over to the state involved for investigation.

The participating states are Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky, Minnesota, Kansas, Ohio, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota and North Carolina.

"Tax cheaters cheat you," said Roger D. Sweet, director of the Illinois Department of Revenue.

"Illinois collects more than $248 million in cigarette taxes each year — and more than one-third of this goes directly for the state's school children. But federal estimates are that we lose another $20 million a year to smuggling.

"Those dollars are coming out of taxpayers' pockets — your pockets. You pay your fair share, and you expect to vigorously enforce the laws. Now you can help us in that effort," Sweet said.

A person who buys a pack of cigarettes in Illinois should receive a package that's wrapped in clear cellophane and has a small, yellow and white Illinois tax stamp fixed onto the top of the bottom of the package.

Consumers should call the hotline if they see or buy a package that has a stamp, that has a stamp from another state, or that is not wrapped in celphane.

Smugglers sometimes prefer to remove the cellophane and the out-of-state stamp because most people will notice an out-of-state stamp more quickly than they notice the absence of any stamp.

There is one exception to the cigarette stamp law: cigarette packages sold on Indian reservations and military bases cannot be taxed by the state, and they have no stamps. However, the Indians and military personnel who are entitled to purchase tax-free goods can buy these items for their own personal use.

Also, up to 10 cartons may be purchased from another state and brought into Illinois by an individual for personal use without breaking any criminal laws. If the tax paid was less than 20 cents a pack, however, the difference is supposed to be paid to Illinois.

The Department of Revenue last year arrested a man who illegally used a neighbor's ID card to purchase 256 cartons of untaxed cigarettes from a military base.

The man was sentenced to serve six months in the Cook County Jail, and his car was seized by state agents. The arrest was one of more than a dozen for cigarette smuggling in Illinois.

Generally, interstate smuggling takes advantage of the fact that states tax cigarettes at different rates.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a person is injured on the job, he is normally entitled to certain benefits pursuant to the Workers' Compensation Act. An injured employee may be entitled to temporary total disability for the period of time he missed work, reasonable and necessary medical expenses, and a lump sum award for the permanent nature of his disability.

Sometimes the question arises as to whether a worker's injury is compensable if it was sustained off the employer's premises. In one recent case, a nurse was leaving the hospital where she worked and heading toward her car which was parked on a public parking lot. As she approached her vehicle, she was struck by another car which was leaving the parking lot. The question then arose as to whether she was entitled to Workers' Compensation benefits.

Illinois law provides that injuries which occur off the employer's premises are generally not compensable unless (1) the employee's presence was required in the performance of his or her duties and (2) the employee is thereby exposed to a risk common to the general public but to a degree greater than other persons. In one case decided in 1986, an employee punched her time clock, walked approximately 20 feet, and exited the building through a doorway she was instructed to use.

As the employee was walking on the sidewalk outside the doorway toward the employee parking lot, she slipped and fell on ice. She was eventually hospitalized for back trouble, and two surgical operations were later performed.

The employer argued that her injuries were not compensable since they were sustained on private property. The Industrial Commission found that the access claimant used was the one required for use by the employer, and therefore incidental to her assigned duties. The Industrial Commission also found that the flurry of exiting employees, combined with the icy sidewalk conditions, created a risk to which the claimant was more susceptible than the general public. The Industrial Commission thus concluded that the claimant's injury was compensable. This decision was later affirmed by the Appellate Court.

With regard to the nurse who was leaving the hospital in the example noted above, her case appears to be similar to that just discussed. If the nurse can show that her presence was required in the parking lot and that she was exposed to a greater risk than that of the public at large, her injury would also be compensable.

Isaiah 58:11... "And the Lord shall guide thee continually"

We need to clearly understand that God will lead us day by day. We must learn to trust God. He does not want us harmed in any way. He does not want us to be dominated by fear. He knows what is best for each of us and promises to guide us continually.

Give yourself to God daily in prayer. Ask that His will be done. Do not hurry your decisions. Wait on God. He knows best how to lead you.

Let Him guide your life. Today.

How do you show off a prized Indian or Persian rug and still place a coffee table in front of the sofa? With a glass-top table, of course. Bases are available in a wide choice of decorating styles.
The easiest way to sand round table legs and other curved surfaces is to cut a strip of abrasive paper and then pull it back and forth around the leg, "shoeing" style.
Display headboard can dress up a youngster's room — and hold toys, too. Shallow shelves behind the bed show off books and cuddly animals.
Stairlifts and straight ladders are balanced differently. Don't try to use a closed stairlift as a straight ladder by leaning it against a wall; it's liable to slip.
"Closing" is when a real estate transaction is formalized, confirming the original terms in the agreement of sale. The buyer gets a certificate of title, abstract and deed. The seller gets the money.

Vadalabene supports Gov. Thompson's tax increase proposal

To the editor:

Gov. James Thompson on June 9 proposed a 1 percent personal income tax increase (2% to 3%) and an increase in the corporate tax of 1.6 percent (4 to 5.6).

I am strongly in favor of the governor's proposal because it includes reinstatement of the income tax exemption for the blind and the elderly, and it brings retirement across the board for teachers and other state employees back up to 60 percent of funding. Retirement payout last year was cut to 44 percent in the governor's summer cuts.

The governor's proposal as presented will raise roughly $1.3 billion. Of these dollars, $798 million (71 percent) is earmarked for education; $227 million (29 percent) is designated for human services.

In a breakdown of the education budget, $457 million goes to elementary and secondary education; $217 million goes to higher education; $15 million for job training; and $129 million for retirement.

Among the several agencies receiving increases under the governor's proposal in human services, public aid would receive $112 million; mental health, $84 million; Department of Children and Family Services, $46 million; Comprehensive Health Insurance Program, $22 million; and the Department on Aging, $13 million.

I believe there are three important things to remember with this budget proposal:

1. It is the first step toward making a bigger commitment to education in Illinois.
2. It reinstates the tax exemption for the blind and the elderly which was repealed on the state level by the change in the federal tax law, and also increases retirement funding to 60 percent.
3. This proposal is not carved in granite. The General Assembly, during the last weeks of the spring session, will be working together to send to the governor a tax plan which is dedicated to education and human services.

This proposal today contains no gasoline tax; no projects for Build Illinois.

This is a no-nonsense tax approach which is aimed at providing more dollars for education and human services.

The governor stated in his address that this tax increase will not take place without reform in Chicago schools. I agree with the governor wholeheartedly in this matter. Downstate Illinois is tired of cleaning up after and bailing out Chicago schools.

It is time to be responsible. It is time to weed out the teachers that are not providing the children with a quality education.

It is time to work to prevent the high number of dropouts instead of merely adding them to the public aid rolls.

We need this tax increase. The people of Illinois were not ready for it last year and, frankly, the governor did not have his priorities in the right areas.

But today, following the teacher layoffs, and the underfunded programs for education and Medicaid, I believe that the time has come for a tax increase for education.

We're at the starting gate with a program that will place or show. By the finish line, Illinois will be a winner.

Military units will fight drug imports, Sen. Dixon says

To the editor:

The United States is unquestionably losing the war on drugs. Drugs are cheaper and easier to find than ever.

In Illinois, 100,000 adults are addicts.

Today in the United States,

5,000 Americans will try cocaine for the first time; nearly 2,000 Americans will be arrested for drug-related crimes; and more than 2,700 boats and planes will smuggle illegal drugs into the country.

Given my experience and commitment to finding solutions to the severe problem of drug abuse in our country, I would once again like to address the subject publicly.

I am one of the principal sponsors of the Omnibus Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 and a member of the Senate Caucus on International Narcotics Control.

I have been working on this issue for several years. I originally proposed the idea of special military personnel for drug trafficking.

We should use every resource available to fight this growing problem in our country.

Drugs are destroying the lives of the young people in our state.

Clearly, drugs are an epidemic ravaging our society.

We must attack the drug problem on every front. This is a war we cannot afford to lose. It is a war we will not lose.

U.S. SEN. ALAN DIXON

Car, flood problems burden Bottoms

To the editor:

Once upon a time, in a state called Illinois, supposedly a state in America, some of the people in the county of St. Clair, called the Bottoms people, became very disenchanted with the manipulations of state and local legislators.

These Bottoms people, who lived below the bluffs, felt disenfranchised, mistreated and ignored.

It seemed as if the legislators plotted to render these people penniless. Not only were they taxed unreasonably, but new ways were sought to condemn them to everlasting poverty — even by legislators who received the Bottoms people's votes.

To show their appreciation for the support of the Bottoms people, these legislators passed all sorts of bills against them. To name a few:

For clean air, the Bottoms people were forced to have their automobiles checked and brought up to par. Mind you, it mattered not whether autos from other areas of the county, state or country, which did not have to take the emissions test, passed through the area to pollute as often as they saw fit. The law was to make the Bottoms people keep the air clean.

For sewage treatment, the legislators did their part in outfitting a corporation called the American Bottoms. This corporation was accused of billing the Bottoms people before the plant was built. Their rates were to be a certain percentage of the water used. Ironically, not only did the water rates go sky high in a short time, but the American Bottoms was charging people for watering their lawns and flowers and washing their cars. All in the name of sewage treatment.

Presently, our dear legislators and company have concocted a new scheme to further drain the Bottoms people, who suffer from floods.

Instead of solving the flood problem by taxing all people whose water contributes to flood conditions, our legislators are scheming to add some more poor Bottoms people as contributors, and want all Bottoms people to double their property taxes for five years, which means forever.

At this point, we must give credit to one of our legislators, Wyvett Young. Twice, she tried to get her constituents to do the fair thing, and have all contributing parties pay, but the proposal didn't get out of the House of Representatives. Evidently, our other legislators didn't see fit to give her help.

But, wow, these Hill people must have clout. They continue to escape, while the Bottoms people must double the kitty. Yes, these Hill people can dash, drench and drown, free of charge.

Do the Bottoms people have leaders? Yes, some of the best orators in the world. They soothe the people by reminding them that there will be a better day over yonder, not here.

They teach that taxation without representation is tyranny, but only in history. They profess that power lies in the political party, but cease to use this power.

But, I, too, have a dream. My dream is that no one votes for their property tax to be doubled, that the Hill people will either pay their share, or stop dashing, drenching and drowning us, and dam their waters to keep for themselves; and that those Bottoms legislators whom we elect to represent us, stop plotting and scheming to send the Bottoms people to the poorhouse.

On second thought, they'll think of a way to do it without our votes, I bet.

Wal-Mart: Our holy grail

King Arthur called it the Holy Grail, a thing of power needed to restore Camelot to its former glory.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse calls it Wal-Mart.

His Camelot is downtown Granite City.

The success of the mayor's plan to rebuild the city's rundown downtown likely teeters on Wal-Mart's receptiveness to being the anchor store for the elusive shopping center.

With more than 13,000 letters in support of the idea of a Wal-Mart store downtown, Cruse and his Sancho Panza, Economic Development Coordinator Alan Ortals, went on a quixotic quest to the company's main office in Arkansas on Wednesday to plead the city's case.

If Cruse delivers, he'll get the credit and if he doesn't his critics will offer no quarter when reminding voters more than a half million dollars was spent on developing a loser.

No matter what Cruse's political future holds, it is insignificant compared to what the downtown project means to the city's economic future.

Without the shopping center, downtown may be left to junk shops, storefront churches and those rare entrepreneurial types whose hard work will lead them through even the most adverse conditions — those types eventually move to better locations. Downtown will remain empty, forgotten except as an eyesore.

With the center, we expect a downtown rebound. New shops, people, a forward-looking attitude — this city's people can make the center work.

Whatever the outcome for Cruse and Granite City, the downtown project is a grail worthy of the quest.

Hanoi, Holyoke views differ

Now that actress Jane Fonda has apologized for her support of and visit to the Hanoi-led government that Americans fought in the Vietnam war, should we forgive and forget?

That is up to each individual. Waterbury, Conn., and Holyoke, Mass., veterans opposed to her plans for an on-location film say she needs to follow up with a series of positive acts, including a return to Vietnam to aid in the return of U.S. servicemen still prisoners or missing there.

The queen of fitness videos clearly is an accomplished person, winning multiple acting awards and starring in many successful motion pictures. She is attractive and she proved at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville she can think on her feet. We heard her address a large SIUE gathering but were impressed more by her glibness and retentive memory than by the soundness of her arguments and answers.

Making it difficult to accept her limited apology are four factors:

1. She did back the eventual winners, but they have proven to be harshly brutal, to the detriment of millions of innocent people.
2. Her abandonment of her nation's cause in the divisive conflict was as distasteful as the pro-Russian activity of some Americans who gave up on their native land during 1930s Depression hardships. Overthrowing one's nation just isn't the same as striving to perfect it. Revolution may not have been her intent, but she did call our young men law-breaking war criminals.

3. She may now claim to have had peace as her passion, someone who merely wanted to "end the killing." If so, why did she don an enemy helmet in 1972 and sit in a gunner's seat at a North Vietnamese anti-aircraft installation?

4. Her concession June 17 that she was "thoughtless and careless" and is "sorry" she hurt anyone is diminished by its timing. It wasn't voiced five years ago, or a year ago, but now, when she is hoping to make a movie without disruptive protests.

The war may have been a mistake, but the way this gifted woman fought it probably has left a rift that will never be fully resolved. Not only was she misguided in past deeds, but apparently still is far from the mainstream of her country's thinking. Fortunately for her, that won't get you thrown into prison in the United States, but it might in Vietnam these days.

Problem? Just adopt a rule

It would be hard to find fault with a proposed regulation requiring emergency rooms to examine all patients who seek treatment. But we'll try.

Metro East hospitals generally do treat all medical emergencies. It's the humanitarian thing to do. Some charity patients run up bills of several hundred thousand dollars each for long and complicated treatment. But the hospitals are humanitarian and charitable and accept such expenses as part of their mission.

The rule proposed by the Department of Health and Human Services would thwart swanky hospitals, like some in the Chicago area, when they try to "dump" poor and uninsured patients on others, particularly city-owned medical centers.

Such transfers of patients aren't a good idea. But it's interesting that the ban is being suggested by Uncle Sam, who along with some states has been backing away from financing the care of indigent patients.

The money has to come from somewhere, and the price sometimes is "paid" by the permanent closing of debt-ridden hospitals in neighborhoods that need them.

HHS, whose new rule could go into effect in mid-August, says it knows how to keep hospitals in line. If they dump patients, they'll be fined $50,000 for each incident and suspended from the Medicare program, if they haven't gone out of business in the meantime.

Letters

Many long for Kennedy's caring

To the editor:

A memorial service on the 20th anniversary of the death of Sen. Robert Kennedy, held on a hillside at Arlington Cemetery, was a remarkable event.

"Moving" is an overworked word, but it aptly describes what took place.

It was not the priest's sermon, nor the tribute by Bobby's son, Congressman Joseph Kennedy, fine as both were.

It was the crowd. More than 10,000 people showed up.

Perhaps 200 of us who were there knew Bobby Kennedy.

Some will say the crowd came out of curiosity, wanting to see his widow, Ethel, or his brother, Sen. Edward Kennedy. But I've been to political meetings with both of them where there were small turnouts.

And anyone who says they came out of curiosity did not sense the mood of the crowd. These were not the curious. It was clearly much more than that.

I came expecting to see perhaps 500 people. It stunned me to see that hillside covered with people.

In part, they came to pay tribute to Bobby Kennedy — his sensitivity, his willingness to speak up for the less fortunate.

But I mean no disrespect to Bobby Kennedy when I say that it had to be more than that.

There was a feeling that a leader who was good and sensitive and compassionate had been suddenly, cruelly and irrationally torn away from all of us. And they yearn for what he stood for.

Members of that crowd — 10,000 of them — were quietly saying to Bobby Kennedy: "We miss you. We need you. We want you to lead again, to be sensitive again to the forgotten and downtrodden in this country and around the world."

There were no pickets. Only once was there even polite applause, after Joe Kennedy spoke.

There were no cheers, and not many tears.

There they were: Young and old, black and white, a quiet — remarkably quiet — respectful, orderly crowd of 10,000 people.

But it was primarily the mood that you felt. Ten thousand people who were there to say they miss Bobby Kennedy, but even more to say they miss something in government he represented.

U.S. SEN. PAUL SIMON

View given on cat, dog situation

To the editor:

I believe that Mr. Senior Citizen has a right to have a dog if that dog makes it easier for him to go for a walk each day. The lonely widow, the kids down the street, and the couple next door have a right to have a pet.

Like all rights, there are limits and responsibilities. If pet owners cannot take proper care of their pets they do not have the right to force their pets on a neighbor. They do not have the right to turn their pets out to create a mess on their neighbors' lawn.

If they cannot afford to feed it they do not have the right to turn it loose to rummage through trash cans for food. This also should apply to cats. Veterinarians say cats are happier when they are kept indoors and cared for. When they are allowed to run loose they pick up fleas and diseases and have to many times fight for their lives.

Critical of coverage of suspicious fire

To the editor:

This letter is regarding an article that was in the paper. There was a fire on June 5 at 1017 2nd St. in Madison.

This fire was caused by arson. The fire itself should have been the issue, not the history of the building.

It stated the building used to be an old bordello back in the '40s. That had nothing to do with the fire. Personally, I thought it was in bad taste to tell about the history. If Lt. Paul Bargelet wanted to write about the building, he should have told the press about how long it took the Madison Fire Department to assist after they received the call.

I feel that the current owners have been put through enough and should have the story at least told right. They were in the process of having it remodeled in order to open a family-owned business.

They are very respectable and hard-working people. Because they had no connection with the building's history, the history should have never been brought up.

Editor's note: The article made clear the owners had no connection with the building's past.

PEOPLE WHO SEE IT BOTH WAYS

Media Matters

The photo file is a grey, dog-eared folder where we keep pictures you've sent us for publication. Looking through the folder, problems contributing to the backlog are evident.

A main problem is photo quality. When Paul Guggina, Valerie Evenden or I design a page, we want photos, but some are awful.

"Awful" is defined as blurry, people's heads being smaller than peas, and color photos containing too much yellow and/or red (red and yellow come out black in the newspaper).

There's a solution.

1) Once blurry, a photo stays blurry. We just won't use those blurry photos and that will make room for good photos.

2) Photos of people with itchy-bitty heads look bad. The reason is simple (well, not really, but I'll try to make it sound that way). Using your picture of the pinhead man, we essentially take a picture of your picture. Ours will contain little black dots.

Dots are important. Without them the printing press could not put the photo images on the newspaper page you're holding. See Paul Simon's picture there to the left? Look closely. See dots? Those ink dots taken together form an image and if they weren't there the ink would run together, making a smudge of Paul's face.

In the case of itchy-bitty faces, they may be composed of just a few dots. Facial characteristics will be lost. In short, the face won't be recognized.

The solution to itchy-bitty heads is to get closer to the subject. You usually want to show a person's face, not the whole body, so concentrate on that face.

3) Red and saffron yellow become black when even put before changes to black and white for use in the newspaper. So in the newspaper that dramatic red dress on a black background is going to look like midnight in an oil pool. Consider that before taking the photo: Put the red or yellow dress on a light, preferably white, background.

We want to use your photos and hope these guidelines will help you prepare that special shot for the newspaper.

Is campaign for Wal-Mart to aid city or politics?

Do you think the concerted effort by city officials to lure a Wal-Mart store to Granite City, including a massive letter-writing campaign, is fueled by economic or political reasons?

Maggi Dettwiler, Granite City

"A combination of both. If they brought a Wal-Mart to downtown it would help business, but I think they're a day late and a dollar short as far as downtown is considered. They wait until right before the election to do anything."

John Pucker, Granite City

"A little bit of both. Economies because downtown is really depressed and it would be good for the city. Politics because the elections are coming up and there have been a lot of problems with the Police Department and at City Hall. And it would be a big boost for the mayor and other elected officials."

Jim Holland, Granite City

"I think it's to help the city. It would be a big push for the downtown refurbishing. I wonder why we don't already have a Wal-Mart here."

Federal bribery, fraud probe of Defense Dept. contracts includes McDonnell Douglas

By Judy Fahys

F-34 Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal authorities issued 32 warrants this month in a massive probe of alleged fraud and bribery in Department of Defense military contracts, including contracts with McDonnell Douglas Corp. and a New York subsidiary of St. Louis-based Emerson Electric Co.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Naval Investigative Service served warrants at the homes and offices of consultants, contractors and Defense Department employees in a dozen states as part of a two-year investigation.

The next day, the FBI also searched homes in Bridgeport, Conn., and Fairfax, Va., but it leveled no charges. FBI spokesman Sue Schnitzer declined to say when the agency's findings would be released.

"It's too early to speculate on where this investigation will lead or what further action will be taken," she said.

The sweep on June 14 included searches of the files of two high-ranking Pentagon officials and a former Navy official. Although the probe appeared to concentrate on Navy procurement activities of the Air Force and other military services may be investigated, according to published reports.

The investigation centers on allegations that former Defense Department employees played inside connections into payoffs for information on competing bids, contract specifications and other details key to winning lucrative military contracts.

The Associated Press reported June 15 that some of the officials had been wiretapped for most of the two years of the investigation.

In St. Louis, records were sought from a McDonnell Douglas building on Bannock Road shortly after noon on June 14. The company later issued a statement saying the warrant was "relating to the work of a consultant for McDonnell Douglas Corp."

"We believe that our relationship with that consultant has been entirely proper," said Bob O'Brien, spokesman for McDonnell Douglas in Washington.

McDonnell Douglas, the nation's third largest defense contractor, has a number of Navy prime contracts including those for the airframe for the Harrier attack aircraft and Hornet fighter jet, and the Tomahawk and Harpoon missiles. They are made in St. Louis plants.

The Greenlawn, N.Y., offices of Hazeltine, a defense electronics firm purchased by Emerson in 1986, also were searched. Officials from that company referred calls to a St. Louis attorney who was not available for comment.

About real estate

Few mortgage lenders use 'Canadian' plan

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I have read in your column about the "Canadian" mortgage where half of a mortgage payment is made every two weeks, making 13 payments in a year.

I recently learned of a service, based in California, which will electronically transfer half of your mortgage payment to your lender every two weeks. There is a start-up fee of about $400 and a monthly fee of $4.80. You have stated that this method of mortgage payment will save interest and pay off the mortgage early.

Have you ever heard of this sort of service and, do you think it is worthwhile checking into?

Answer: Yes, the "Canadian" mortgage (or "biweekly" or "payday" mortgage) is worth-while, but you don't need to pay $400, plus another $57.60 a year, for such a service.

The theory behind the biweekly mortgage is simple: By paying half your normal mortgage payment every other week you are, in effect, making a 13th payment every year and — depending on the mortgage interest rate — it will knock a 30-year mortgage down to 18 to 20 years. Every year, of course, has two months when, no matter on what day you get paid (if paid biweekly), there will be three pay periods. Thus, you pick up the equivalent of an extra month's payment to principal every year.

The strategy is called the "Canadian" mortgage because Canadian credit unions devised it about 10 years ago. Most of their members were paid biweekly and, under Canadian law, mortgage interest is not tax deductible — a whole of an incentive to pay off a mortgage as fast as possible.

The trouble with the plan, however, is that very few mortgage lenders are geared to handle twice as many mortgage payments a month as they normally handle. While you are beginning to find more lenders going into the biweekly, they are still few and far apart — mainly in the Northeast and a few in the Midwest. To my knowledge, only one California thrift has entered the field.

Now, about this company's "service." If your mortgage lender is not set up to accept biweekly payments, why on earth would they accept them from a third party representing you? The answer is simple: This company is not making your payments for you biweekly, it is making them monthly, just as you are doing, but, in the meantime, they are investing those extra two payments each year for their own benefit. And then, once a year, they are making that one extra monthly payment for you.

Obviously, there is nothing illegal about it, but why pay for such a service? Every month (twice a year) when you have an extra payday, put half your normal monthly mortgage payment into your savings account and then, when the second three-pay-period month rolls around, send your mortgage lender the equivalent of an extra regular payment — to principal only.

Record volume

IRONMAKING at Granite City Steel produced an all-time record of molten pig iron — 161,175 tons in May. Included in the record-breaking month was an all-time record day when production was 6,229 tons on Sunday, May 22. John Wandling, director of ironmaking, said, "This achievement is directly attributed to improvement in preventive maintenance at the furnaces and the superior attitude and work ethic of the ironmaking area employees." Ironmaking division employees are members of Chemical Workers Local 50. Left to right are Jerry Siney, president, Local 50; Wandling; William Chilcote, Blast Furnace Electrical; Don Gass and Charlie Ho, both of Blast-Furnace Stock House; and Ron Legate, Material Control/Blast Furnace Lab.

New mutual fund ratings, rankings differ drastically from past years

By Bob Hardcastle

It is again that time of the year when Lipper Analytical Services sends out all of their ratings and rankings on mutual funds. One thing is for sure: The rankings in 1987 were a lot different for the top-10 ranked funds than in 1986.

There are many companies that rate and rank mutual funds, including Money Magazine, Forbes and Standard Register. It seems like you can find a mutual fund ranked wherever you want it ranked — if you look long enough in the different ranking categories.

Some funds are listed by the size; others are listed by the amount of stocks they have in their portfolio. Then there are those companies that rank the highest income. There are even mutual fund ratings on the top money market returns.

It will be very interesting at the end of this year to see the kind of returns that the highest-ranked funds have had over the last five years. There seems to be a shift among the leaders over the last five years. New leaders are emerging.

In talking to different portfolio managers for mutual funds over the last several months, I found that most of them have gotten heavier in cash.

The managers still are optimistic but not highly-optimistic about a great summer. Most people now are negative about the stock market. The volume has been very low. The markets have had a hard time staying above 2000 on the Dow. Almost every time a favorable report comes out, the market place reacts negatively. These are negative signs.

However, when everyone thinks the market is going to go one way it usually surprises everyone and goes the opposite.

That is what I think is going to happen this month. Just about the time everyone thinks the market is going to get buried, I think the market will start a big summer rally.

If we can start getting several days of heavy volume back into the market, the portfolio managers will start coming back into the stock market with large amounts of cash. This should force the market to move up quicker.

Of all the investments throughout the years, mutual funds are one of the few that has survived.

Looking at mutual funds as a long-term investment can keep you ahead of inflation and ahead of economic woes.

Consumer tips

Overnight delivery service considerations for selection given

By Neil F. Hartigan

Illinois attorney general

Q. We have been considering using an overnight delivery service. Can you give us some tips on things to look for?

A. There are many good reputable delivery services for you to choose from. In choosing one, you should compare the following factors:

1. Rates — The cost of delivery is usually determined by package weight, distance to be covered, and speed of delivery requested.

2. Cut-off times — In order for a package to be delivered by a certain time, it must be received by the delivery service by a cut-off time.

3. Limitations — Most companies specify limitations on the size and weight of the package to be delivered. Some also will not ship certain types of packages, such as perishables.

4. Weekend and holiday services — While some companies pick up and deliver 365 days a year, some won't on weekends and holidays.

5. Insurance and liability — Most companies provide insurance as part of the shipping cost. However, some add additional fees.

6. Proof of delivery — Written or phone confirmation is usually provided either automatically or upon request. Find out if there is an extra charge for this service.

Winning a prize?

Q. I recently received a postcard stating that I was eligible to receive one of four prizes for participating in a national promotion. Is this legitimate?

A. Any consumer who receives such an inducement as this should be wary. There are more than a half dozen different firms responsible for these types of mailings, with the postcards and the four prizes offered. Typically, the alleged prizes range from a new truck to a $5,000 savings bond to a genuine fur coat.

Some recipients of postcards reported that when they called the toll-free number to confirm their entry, they were told the "winner" must purchase a $200-$300 supply of vitamins via credit card. One claimed it was working in conjunction with a "major manufacturer" and two major credit card companies.

Consumers were led to believe that these firms had been given access to their account numbers and authorization by the credit card companies to make the transaction when, in fact, they did not. Usually the firms request that a credit card number be given over the phone before the shoppers could even find out which prize they had won.

Our office recommends that you never give out a credit card number to an unfamiliar firm without thoroughly investigating it first. Remember, if you must pay for something, you have not "won" a free prize.

Billion-dollar impact by Peabody

Peabody Holding Company Inc., the nation's largest producer and marketer of coal, announced that in 1987 its operations injected $1.4 billion into local economies where the company's 13,200 employees live.

In Illinois, where Peabody's six mines and related facilities employ more than 2,700 workers, its total economic contribution was more than $246 million.

Peabody's Illinois operations paid about $145 million in wages and fringe benefits to local employees in 1987 and purchased more than $67 million in goods and services. In addition, Peabody's Illinois operations paid more than $34 million in taxes of all kinds last year.

Peabody Holding, headquartered in St. Louis, is the parent of Peabody Coal Co., Henderson, Ky.; Eastern Associated Coal Corp., Charleston, W.Va.; and St. Louis-based Peabody Development Co. as well as 40 other subsidiaries and affiliates engaged in coal mining, marketing, processing and transporting coal.

Peabody companies sold 79.2 million tons of coal in 1987, generating $1.76 billion in revenues. Net income for the year was $74 million, down from the $101 million reported the prior year.

Peabody's Illinois Division, headquartered in Fairview Heights, is responsible for operating Baldwin, Marissa and River King No. 6 Mines near Marissa; Mine No. 10, Pawnee; Eagle No. 2, Shawneetown; and River King No. 1, Freeburg.

The division is also responsible for Rogers County No. 2, a surface mine in Oklahoma. Peabody restructured its Illinois operations in 1987 to improve efficiency and to enhance its price competitiveness.

"We are in a market that is plagued by over production over capacity," said Illinois Division President John C. "Jack" Bennett. "In 1987, we closed our Will Scarlet Mine and reduced our power at other locations to adjust to pressures from a weak market for high-sulfur coal."

WASHINGTON — The Collinsville-based Southwestern Illinois Tourism and Convention Bureau has quickly emerged as a regional force in state tourism promotion, according to the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs.

In fact, no other bureau in southern Illinois has grown so fast or has benefited so much from the state's own quest to become a national leader in the competition for tourist dollars, department figures show.

Under a state program that provides local tourist bureaus with 50 percent of their budgets, the SITCB received $265,000 last year, a vast increase over the bureau's $28,000 state budget in 1984.

The SITCB's closest local rival in terms of 1987 state receipts was the Alton-Trenton Rivers Convention and Visitors Bureau, which received $65,932.

Tourism bureaus in Shawneetown, Carbondale, Mt. Vernon and Williamson County each received between $50,000 and $55,000 in state funds last year, said Linda Morris, manager of the Illinois Local Tourism and Convention Bureau Grant Program.

The state allocates tourist bureau matching funds based on a formula that takes into account the area's population, the number of motel and hotel rooms, and local revenue from food and meal taxes, Morris said.

The SITCB bureau has grown to include most of four counties — Madison, St. Clair, Clinton and Randolph — and plans to take in Monroe and Bond counties in 1989, an expansion that should also boost the size of its state funding, SITCB president Ron Presson said.

"They are promoting and they are doing a valuable job with the money they are receiving," Morris said. She said SITCB enjoyed rapid growth even after Alton broke away in 1986 to start a separate bureau.

SITCB dominates an area between Springfield and Cairo at the same time Illinois lawmakers are spending more to strengthen the state in the national battle to lure tourists.

In 1987, Illinois spent $20.5 million on tourism promotion, a $5 million increase over the previous year. The state's budget increase alone last year was larger than the total tourism budget of 28 states, according to the U.S. Travel Data Center.

Illinois' 1987 tourism budget ranked second nationally behind New York, which spent $21.5 million, according to the data center figures.

Presson, president of the SITCB, said the bureau spends 75 percent of its budget promoting local attractions like the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows, the Cahokia Mounds World Heritage Site, and Carlyle Lake.

squeezed margins despite efforts to control mining costs," said Robert H. Quisenberry, president and chief executive officer of Peabody Holding.

"Late in the year we reduced our production in some spot markets and realigned production and manpower to these new tonnage levels."

In addition, depletion of coal reserves at some mines brought about further operational changes. As a result, Peabody closed or idled eight mines in the fourth quarter. Total employment, which peaked on March 31 at 14,611, had declined to 13,326 by year-end.

In 1987, Peabody Holding subsidiaries sold 66.4 million tons of coal to domestic electric utility companies. This coal was shipped to 50 major U.S. utility customers and used by 76 power plants located in 23 states.

Peabody's sales represent about 9 percent of the total domestic utility consumption of coal and nearly 5 percent of all coal shipped by domestic electrical utilities.

In addition, Peabody sold nearly 9 million tons of coal in 1987 to a variety of U.S. industrial customers who use the coal to produce their own electricity and steam power or in the manufacturing of steel.

The company also shipped more than 5 million tons of coal to export customers in 14 countries: Europe, Canada, South America and the Far East.

Peabody Holding is owned by five firms: Newmont Mining Corp., New York (which owns 49.97 percent); Bechtel Investments Inc., San Francisco, the Boeing Co., Seattle, and Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates, Boston (each with 15.01 percent); and The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, New York (5 percent).

State awards contract for AIDS phone line

Horizons Community Services Inc., Chicago, has been awarded a one-year contract to operate a statewide, toll-free AIDS hot line, said Dr. Bernard J. Turnock, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The service will receive $151,330.

The AIDS hot line, 1-800-AIDS, offers confidential answers to questions about AIDS. The hot line, which handles about 60,000 calls a year, can be reached between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. daily.

Legislators get first video annual report

Legislators usually receive stacks of printed annual reports from state agencies every year. This year, the Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources sent state legislators an annual report in the form of a video.

The video annual report is the first in the Illinois state govern-

State-funded center to fight drug abuse

Gateway Foundation, Caseyville, an Illinois Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse licensed and funded agency, opened its doors June 20.

William T. Atkins, DASA director, attended the ribbon cutting and opening ceremonies.

Atkins said his department in 1985 developed a long-range plan for service delivery in the Metro East area.

The Gateway Caseyville facility will serve St. Clair, Madison, Washington, Bond, Randolph, Clinton and Monroe counties. The facility will provide alcoholism and substance abuse services including counseling, assessment of medical and other personal needs, group therapy and recreational activities.

Also, Gateway Caseyville will provide education and other services for the entire family, designed to build more positive and satisfying family relationships. It will provide services to 1,000 individuals annually, Atkins said.

Q. I have an idea for a new business which I really believe has merit. A friend agrees it is a good idea but cautions that I need to talk with others before embarking on my own entrepreneurial venture. Since this business has never been done before, who would be of value?

A. Professional people like attorneys, accountants and your banker are a good place to start. Entrepreneurs are the spark it takes to light the fire of free enterprise. It takes a special kind of dedication and talent to conceive a business idea, provide the money necessary and to keep with it, often through beginning hard times. The two most often cited factors in succeeding with a business of your own are ability and commitment. The number one reason for failure is money, or the lack of it. By the time a new enterprise has reached the point where lack of money is a critical problem, it is often too late for a banker to help. Usually the time your banker can be of most assistance is in the planning stage of the new business. The more aware of the possible pitfalls of a business venture, the more likely you will be to avoid them or be prepared to conquer the problems.

Solar-powered car set for State Fair

A teardrop-shaped, solar-powered car that has stirred the imagination of people around the world will be on display at the Illinois State Fair for one week this summer, Gov. James R. Thompson has announced.

General Motors Corp. has agreed to exhibit its GM Sunray car at the Illinois State Fair on Aug. 14 through 21.

Designed to compete in the inaugural World Solar Challenge in Australia, the Sunraycar outdistanced 25 solar cars from seven nations to win the 1,950-mile transcontinental race last November, finishing with a lead of more than 600 miles. The car averaged 41.6 mph and reached a speed of 70 mph during pre-race trials.

Chinese delegation to exhibit products

Illinois plans a warm welcome for a delegation of about 100 northern Chinese manufacturers who will be exhibiting their products at a trade show to feature electronics and machine tool equipment, fashions, and sophisticated arts and crafts in Chicago next month.

The Liaoning Products Exhibition, to be held July 7 through 12 at the Chicago Apparel Center, will be open to the public.

"It will provide a forum for a number of Chinese manufacturers to showcase their business and consumer goods and services," said Jay R. Hedges, director of the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, who said the exhibit would lay the groundwork for Illinois companies to return to China.

Du Quoin State Fair recruits bands, batons

High school bands, baton twirlers and pom pom girls will compete during the opening of the Du Quoin State Fair, Aug. 26, 27 and 28.

High school bands will compete in the fair's annual Twilight Parade on Aug. 26 for $1,500 in prizes. Both individual and team dance and twirl teams will compete Aug. 27 and 28 for $300 in prizes. More information is available by writing Special Events, P.O. Box 408, Du Quoin, Ill. 62832 or calling 542-9373.

Fire parks issue fire restrictions

State parks and other Department of Conservation sites in northern Illinois have begun placing open burning restrictions on visitor activities due to the prolonged drought.

In northern portions of the state, hikers are also being asked to refrain from smoking while on trails.

Count our economic blessings

Madison County has suffered a few economic setbacks since past boom times, but it still can count quite a few blessings.

For example, this county still exceeds St. Clair County in annual retail sales, $1,441,560,000 to $1,389,189,000.

MEDIAN HOUSEHOLD effective buying income is $22,705 in Madison County, topping St. Clair's $22,432.

The statistics were compiled by the Regional Commerce and Growth Association, which notes that Monroe County has average household income of $25,072. Aggregate retail sales there are $90,589,000.

Clinton and Jersey counties have annual sales of $132,220,000 and $63,951,000 and family income of $23,517 and $22,190, respectively.

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

TRAILING ILLINOIS in many respects is the City of St. Louis, where household income is $18,170.

But St. Louis County averages $34,353 and the bi-state region (the St. Louis metropolitan statistical area) averages $27,518. Our bi-state area's combined buying income is $31.4 billion.

Of the 1,251,700 bi-state labor force, 1,173,500 persons are employed.

The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate is 6 percent, compared to an 8.3 percent 1980-87 average. Cost-of-living in the region rose 3.2 percent in the past year.

RETAIL SALES, bolstered by big shopping centers, remain strong in the bi-state area, where the total is $16,174,236,000.

The big leader is St. Louis County, with $8,382,352,000. St. Louis city sales are $2,946,199.

The overall population of 2,446,100 in 889,600 households in a 5,341-square-mile territory — including the Missouri counties of St. Louis, St. Charles, Franklin and Jefferson as well as the central city and the five Illinois counties — took 419,234 airplane flights, with passengers totaling 20,362,606.

MANUFACTURING and service activity totaled $70.3 billion. The office vacancy rate was 16 percent.

Housing starts in the past quarter numbered 3,065 and in the past year 13,604.

Non-housing construction starts amounted to 154 in the last three months and 795 in the last 12 months.

WE NO LONGER have a professional football team, but St. Louis ranks third in the nation among metropolitan areas with headquarters of some of the 100 largest industrial companies, as determined by Fortune magazine.

Six of the top 100 firms are based here: McDonnell Douglas, 26th in sales, General Dynamics 42nd, Anheuser-Busch 47th, Monsanto 55th, Emerson Electric 67th and Ralston Purina, 70th.

Fortune magazine's list of the 500 biggest industrial and service corporations includes 17 in this metropolitan area, ranking it sixth in the United States.

IN ADDITION to the six firms just mentioned, large companies based in the St. Louis area include Southwest Bell, Kellogg, Weller, Union Electric, Southern, the Center, Mercantile, May Department Stores, Interco, Brown Group, Hargis Industries, Jefferson Smurfit and Sigma Aldrich.

Others are A.G. Edwards, ACF Industries, Allen Foods, Angelica Corp., Apex Oil, Associated Grocers, Capital Coal & Coke, Community Federal, Consolidated Grain and Barge, Dierberg, Edison Brothers, Edward D. Jones, Enterprise Leasing, Fur-Con Corp., Geway Paper, General American, Graybar Electric, HBE, J.S. Alberici, Laclede Gas, Laclede Steel, Martz, McCarthy Brothers, Midwest Petroleum, Peabody, Petrolite, Pultizer, Sverdrup, Tubular Steel and United Van Lines.

GRANITE CITY STEEL is among the major corporate divisions and subsidiaries located in the bi-state area. It is a division of National Steel, which is jointly owned by National Intergroup and Nippon Kokan.

The list of subsidiaries includes Bussman, Calgon Vestal Laboratories, Cerro Copper, Chrysler Motors, Clinton, Congra, Consolidated Aluminum, Continental Telephone, DMB&B, Dillards, Fisher Controls, Gardner Advertising, Ford Motors, General Motors, ITT Financial, Commercial Finance, Lincoln, Mallinckrodt, Mississippi River Transportation, C.V. Mosby, National Vendors, Nerco Coal, Olin Brass and Winchester, Pepsi-Cola Bottling, Pet, Prince Gardner, Purina Mills, Sherwood Medical, TWA Domestic Hub, UniDynamics and Union Pacific.

INCLUDING TRI-CITY Regional Port District operations, the St. Louis area is the second largest in America in inland port activity.

It is the third largest railroad hub in the United States, and 11th largest in industrial production, population and households.

ROGA regards this region as first in the volume of renovation work now in progress, in the top eight in quality of life, with a crime rate lower than that of 75 percent of the largest metropolitan areas.

BEST OF ALL, or certainly close to that, the typical individual or family can afford to live here.

Our region is becoming known as the most affordable in the United States in terms of housing costs. Led by California and Hawaii, the price of a new home is beginning to soar out of sight elsewhere in this country.

Meeting and lodging costs are rated in 15 of the top 25 largest regions, and the general cost of living here is lower than in 23 of the largest metro areas.

Black blanks Bethalto, 2-0

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — There's no place like home — especially when your pitcher throws a shut-out.

Perhaps thankful they didn't have to make a long drive for a road game for the first time in seven nights, the Triplets sat back and got back in the black — as in Tim Black. The right-thunder spun a two-hit shutout as Granite City ended a two-game losing streak with a 2-0 win over winless Bethalto (0-10).

The Triplets' bats weren't much more active than they had been in their previous two losses. Post 113 has scored only six runs in the last three games. But enough offense was scraped together — two unearned runs for Black to pick up his second win of the summer.

"I'm got a lot of strikeouts (eight), but he's really not going to overpower anybody," said Triplets coach Ralph Burnett. "He got them to swing the bats and pop up a lot."

Black had eight strikeouts, 10 fly balls and only three ground ball outs. He walked four and pitched around one error.

"I thought we were in control the whole game," Burnett said. "We had everyone on the edge of their seats at the end, but with the way Tim was going I wasn't too worried."

One cause for concern came in the sixth when Derek Grable, who had homered off the Triplets last week — sent a drive to the edge of the fence in left field, where Keith Matlock hauled it in.

"I didn't think it was going to go out," said Burnett. "I thought the ball Joe Wallace hit was. Their left fielder made a great Play looking into the sun."

Wallace's drive in the fourth was over the fence, but Andy Sticht reached over to make the grab.

The Triplets had chances to score more than they did off lefty Brian Donoue. John Mead was robbed by a great play by shortstop Mike Wallace with a runner on in the first. John Vanbuskirk and Darin Hendrickson singled with two outs in the third, but Matlock flew out.

Craig Dippel reached on an error by second baseman Roger Anderson in the fourth. He scored the game's first run. After Wallace's drive was in, by Sticht, Dippel moved to second on a balk and scored on Kory Burton's single up the middle. Vanbuskirk reached on an error in the fifth and stole second. With two outs, Matlock and Mead got successive infield hits to chase Vanbuskirk home for a 2-0 lead.

The Triplets loaded the bases in the sixth, but Hendrickson grounded out hard to second.

"I really thought we could have scored more," Burnett said. "Joe's ball almost went out and Darin's ball would have scored two runs if it's been either way. When you win, you're happy but you always wonder, you could have won by more."

It was good for the Triplets to get back home, but Burnett is concerned with the lack of offense.

"Even though we've been playing every night, it was still nice to get back home," he said. "The players know this field and it's just a lot easier coming out here."

"But we need to get back hitting the way we were. I thought the first week we were ahead of where we were last year. But we're swinging at a lot of bad pitches. And we're better than that."

NOTES: The Triplets moved to 8-2 with an 8-4 win at East St. Louis on Wednesday. Mike Krausz got his third win without a loss for the summer as he pitched seven innings, fanning eight and scattering seven hits. Krausz helped himself with an RBI. Hendrickson had three hits, including a triple, and an RBI. Wallace had a pair of hits and an RBI. Granite City was aided by five unearned runs.

Paddlers open defense of SWISA dynasty

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — It all looks so innocent. So harmless.

Arrive at the Paddlers Swim Club one summer morning, and it's such a typical summer scene. There are children of all ages dashing here and there in swim suits; parents trying to keep cool as they watch; and instructors trying to coax a 7-year-old to make it from one end of the pool to the other. There's pizza and soda for everyone.

In fact, there is little to suggest that the swimmers, ranging in age from 6 to 18, are carrying on a tradition. It's a winning tradition in this area's competitive swimming circles that could match that of the New York Yankees, the Montreal Canadiens or the Boston Celtics.

Paddlers has won six of seven Southwestern Illinois Swimming

Swimming

Association championships under head coach Celeste (Sonnenberg) Furmanek and seven consecutive SWISA diving championships under Gail McCormick. Dual meet losses for Paddlers come even less often than rain comes to this area.

The good news for Paddlers' competition is that John Amisch is gone. Amisch was one of Paddlers' best for the past 10 years, but has passed the age of 18 and is now at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh.

The bad news for the competition is that Amisch is the only loss from last year's team, and there are about 120 young swimmers ready and willing to

GRANITE CITY — It's 10 a.m. and Gail McCormick is eating pizza.

Not exactly the recommended diet for swimmers and divers, but there's time and reason to relax. McCormick is starting another year in charge of the Paddlers diving team — a team which has won the Southwestern Illinois Swimming Association diving title the past seven years.

Paddlers is known for its strength in numbers, and McCormick said this might be her deepest team yet.

"We're having practice in three sessions, which is the first time we've done that," she said. "I've got 25, maybe 30 kids out this year. And everyone should be back except maybe Mike McCormick. And he still could be here for some meets."

Diving

Jenny Baker is the featured diver. It's hard to stand out in the crowd at Paddlers, but Baker is as good a bet as any.

"She's almost beyond this level of diving," McCormick said. "I've taken her over to St. Louis to get in some competition over there. She listens well and has terrific form."

"She gets great height off the board. That's the thing we have to stress. Some kids don't think of getting height when they are diving. But if you don't do it you don't have much room to make a real good dive."

Lazier takes AIS race at GIR

By Jim Woodcock
Staff affiliate

The first-ever Illinois Grand Prix held Sunday at Gateway International Raceway will be remembered for Buddy Lazier, unrelenting heat and attendance that was considerably less than what Valvoline/Machinists Union American Indy-Car Series officials expected.

Lazier, it turns out, may be the one thing the AIS can count on consistently this summer. He was the easy winner Sunday, outracing the field by a hefty 41.08-second margin to capture a $5,000 purse and a sizable lead in the AIS points standings.

Lazier won the series' debut race May 1 at Willow Springs in Rosemont, Calif., when he edged Kevin Whitesides of Columbia, Mo., in front of nearly 10,000 fans. On Sunday, the 20-year-old Lazier was challenged only mildly in the first leg by Whitesides, who ran two laps back during the second portion of the race after running out of fuel late in the first leg.

Bill Tempero of Fort Collins, Colo., finished second while Bill Scott of Wheeling, Ill., finished third.

Lazier, 20, of Vail, Colo., now has a 50-34 lead in points as the AIS enters its third race (there are nine) next month in Denver. He used the pole position to his advantage Sunday and rarely allowed the space between him and the nearest challenger to shrink.

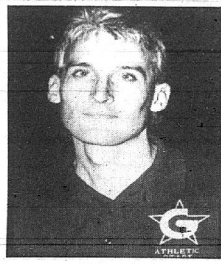

"Buddy's a good racer, there's no doubt about that," said Walt Glatthaar, the Belleville-based executive director of the AIS series. "This race wasn't anywhere as close as the one we had in California, but that's racing. I think everyone had a good time."

The 118.8-mile race was divided into two 27-lap heats, with the cars starting the second heat in the same position they finished the first portion in. The racers refueled and made various adjustments in their engines during the two-hour break between heats, during which time motor cycle and go-kart races were held to entertain fans — who were a story in themselves.

Glatthaar and his associates were crossing their fingers for a crowd that would have at least matched the turnout the AIS attracted in California last month. It didn't happen. The bleachers were perhaps 50 percent filled during the first heat.

Terry Collins

Collins to coach at Lincoln Trail

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

Terry Collins is a basketball coach.

Being the director of intramurals and student activities at Granite City Campus was fine, but with no basketball left to coach, it was time to move on.

That's why Collins was hired Tuesday as the head basketball coach at Lincoln Trail Junior College in Robinson, Ill. Collins will be walking into what he feels is a good situation in the shadow of basketball-mad Indiana.

"They have had good interest in the program there," Collins said. "They had always had good crowds at the games, although attendance was down last year."

A 5-26 record might have had something to do with lagging attendance. But basketball is not just a passing fancy in that area of southeastern Illinois — just up the road from Lawrenceville and not far from Terre Haute and Vincennes, Ind.

The enthusiasm for basketball transmits over the border," Collins said. "They started a program there in 1970 and made it to the national tournament in 1978."

One early star at Lincoln Trail was Anthony "Duck" Mathews, a star at Madison High School in the early 1970s.

"He's still quite well known in that area," said Collins.

GIR

and the numbers fell off sharply as the day wore on.

"The fans who were there were good...we just didn't have enough of them," said Glatthaar, who mentioned that the final attendance figure wouldn't be available until later this week.

"I don't know what it was," he said. "Maybe the heat had something to do with it, kept people away. But there weren't enough people there as far as I was concerned."

The heat, which reached into the mid-90s, did create a sauna-like atmosphere above and around the asphalt raceway. That led to problems with the racers' tires, contributed to a slick racing surface and may have played a part in two engine mishaps as the race began.

On the warm-up lap, cars driven by John Escuri and Whitesides caught fire to begin a day that saw numerous yellow warning flags in both heats. Of the 13 racers who began the race, only eight were around to begin the second heat and only six finished.

Not that it mattered much, though, considering Lazier's dominance in the event. Lazier started the second heat leading second-place Dean Vetrock of Racine, Wis., and quickly buried Vetrock in the field. Jeff Niah, who started the second heat in third place, had over-heating problems as the second heat began and eventually dropped out of the race.

That left Lazier to battle with Scott and Tempero, neither of whom staged much of a challenge. Lazier finished with an average speed of 89.31 mph, considerably less than the 115.07 mph he averaged in his first AIS but more than enough to cruise to the victory.

Lazier won the pole position during Saturday's qualifying runs by completing a lap at 98.4 mph.

Among the drivers who dropped out in the first heat of the race were Bob Lazier, Buddy's father, and Robby Unser, son of three-time Indy 500 winner Bobby Unser.

The AIS series is designed for drivers who aspire to someday race at the Indy 500 but are not yet able to fund the multi-million dollar budget it takes to annually compete in USAC or CART-sanctioned events.
